Abraham Lincoln

Lincoln was born in a log cabin in Kentucky.

Abraham Lincoln was born in a one-room log cabin in 1809. His family lived in the Kentucky wilderness. The cabin had a single window and a dirt floor.

When he was 7 years old, Lincoln's family moved to Indiana. Abe continued to work hard. He became an expert with an ax. He cleared the woods for farming. He cut and split firewood. He split logs into rails for fences. Abe was better with an ax than anyone around, but he would rather read. He read every book he could find or borrow. He once walked six miles for a book!

When Lincoln was about 21, his family moved to Illinois. Abe was elected to the state legislature. He helped make laws for the state of Illinois.

Lincoln spoke out against slavery.

During this time, many people were slaves in the American South. Slaves were not allowed to choose their jobs or where they worked. They worked hard for no pay and were often treated cruelly. Lincoln was opposed to slavery. He gave many speeches about how wrong it was.

Abraham Lincoln became president in 1861. Many Southerners were outraged. They were afraid that the United States would tell them to give up their slaves. They thought states should be able to make their own laws, so they made their own country. Lincoln wanted to keep the country together. The Civil War was a battle between the North and South. It lasted four years, and the North won.

During the war, Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation. This important document set millions of slaves free. Sadly, a few days after the war ended, Lincoln was shot and killed.

Lincoln is on the front of the penny. The Lincoln Memorial is on the back.

Abraham Lincoln was one of the greatest presidents of the United States. We honor him with a magnificent building called the Lincoln Memorial.
